In Victorian Government schools the management of 'personal information' and 'health information' is governed by the Privacy and Data Protection Act 2014 (Vic) and Health Records Act 2001 (Vic) (collectively, Victorian privacy law).

Chaplains who are not part of the NSCP must follow the Victorian Chaplaincy Information, Records and Reporting Policy which details how chaplains in Victorian Government schools must handle personal and health information they collect, consistent with Victorian privacy law.

This document summarises the Victorian Chaplaincy Information, Records and Reporting Policy

Purpose of collecting personal and health information

Chaplains may collect personal and health information about your child to:

- work as a member of the school's wellbeing team and provide chaplaincy services which form part of the wellbeing services available at the school; and
- assist the school to:
 - provide for the educational, social and emotional wellbeing and health of students
 - meet its duty of care obligations
 - make reasonable adjustments for students with disabilities
 - comply with occupational health and safety obligations(collectively, the primary purposes).

On occasion, your child may discuss other members of your family or other people with a chaplain. As a consequence, chaplains may collect personal and health information about people other than your child.

Types of personal and health information collected

The types of personal and health information the chaplain may collect about your child will depend on the nature of the discussions your child has with the chaplain.

Chaplains may collect personal and health information such as your child's address, contact details, information about physical, mental or psychological health, details about any disability your child may have and information about your child's religious beliefs or affiliations.

Chaplains will rely on information provided to them to adequately provide the chaplaincy services. If a chaplain receives incomplete, inaccurate or outdated information, this may adversely affect the assistance provided by them.

Sharing (using/disclosing) personal and health information

Chaplains may share personal and health information collected about you or your child with the school principal:

- for any of the primary purposes set out above
- if there is a risk to your child, other person or the public
- as permitted or required by law
- with consent.
